SUMMARY OF COURSE

You will explore, and learn to critique, qualitative research in education, and you will be introduced to some key methodological issues by looking at published and unpublished qualitative writing across different sub-fields of educational research. You will learn about different epistemological and methodological approaches and, by the end of the course, you will have a good awareness of the issues and components you need to design a small-scale qualitative research project of your own.

THE MAIN WAYS IN WHICH THE COURSE HAS CHANGED SINCE LAST TIME AS A RESULT OF STUDENT FEEDBACK:

- Course convenor is teaching this course for the first time so no feedback available from previous iterations

4. RATIONALE FOR THE INCLUSION OF CONTENT AND TEACHING APPROACH

Research in education is relevant to all educational contexts and to all teachers. In this course you will explore and critique a variety of published research texts, building your skills, engaging with, making use of, and critiquing existing research. The development of your theoretical understanding and analytical skills is a key MEd program outcome. But this course positions teachers as producers as well as consumers of educational research, and beyond engaging with existing research, you will learn skills for conducting a small qualitative research project relevant to your own teaching context(s). The development of your procedural as well as declarative knowledge is therefore the core outcome of the course and is prioritized throughout.

Teaching on the course is driven by your critical engagement with readings and the core textbook. In class discussions, centred around the key readings, allow for theory and analysis to be developed but also applied, with the aim of producing active, engaged student-researchers who will subsequently be well equipped to apply the knowledge and skills developed in their own teaching/research contexts.

5. TEACHING STRATEGIES

Guided reading, small group discussions, whole-group discussions and clarification of key concepts – these support the development and application of your skills and understandings outlined above.

7. RESOURCES

Required Readings - Textbook

- O'Toole, J. & Beckett, D. (2013). Educational research: Creative thinking and doing (2nd edition). Melbourne: Oxford University Press.

Required Readings - Other

Journal articles are listed session-by-session above and are all available on the course Moodle site. You don't need to read every article for each session – I realise there are a lot of readings listed! Instead, they are ordered, for each session, in my suggested order of how important/useful they are. So, if you only have time to read a few additional articles, read the first one for each session, or if you have a bit more time, read the first two for each session, and so on. But make sure you look at the textbook chapter for each session first – we will base our classroom discussions mainly on it.

Further Readings

Available from UNSW Library website: <http://www.library.unsw.edu.au> and will depend on the topics you select for assignments.

Suggested supplementary textbooks (in alphabetical order – not all will be useful for everyone, so choose discerningly):

- Charmaz, K. (2006). Constructing grounded theory. Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage. (There's a much expanded second edition of this out now too!)
- Cohen, L., Manion, L., & Morriison, K. (2011). Research Methods in Education (7th Edition). Abingdon & New York: Routledge. (Previous editions of this are also useful.)
- Hooley, T., Marriott, J., & Wellens, J. (2012). What is online research? London: Bloomsbury Academic.
- Koro-Ljungberg, M. (2016). Reconceptualizing qualitative research. Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage.
- Kozinets, R. V. (2010). Netnography: Doing ethnographic research online. Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage.
- Liamputtong, P. (2013). Qualitative research methods. (4th Edition). Melbourne: OUP. (Previous editions of this are also useful.)
- Newby, P. (2014). Research methods in education. (2nd Edition). Abingdon & New York: Routledge. (Previous editions of this are also useful.)
- Silverman, D. (2007). A very short, fairly interesting and reasonably cheap book about qualitative research. Thousand Oaks, CA: Sage. (There are many other useful qualitative research methods books written or edited by David Silverman – this is a good starting point but do a search for others too).
- Walter, M. (Ed.) (2013). Social research methods. (3rd Edition). Melbourne: OUP. (Previous editions also useful)

Submission of assessments

Students are required to follow their lecturer's instructions when submitting their work for assessment. All assessment will be submitted online via Moodle by 5pm. Students are also required to keep all drafts, original data and other evidence of the authenticity of the work for at least one year after examination. If an assessment is mislaid the student is responsible for providing a further copy. Please see the Student Policies and Procedures for information regarding submission, extensions, special consideration, late penalties and hurdle requirements etc. <https://education.arts.unsw.edu.au/students/courses/course-outlines/>

Assessment Details

Assessment 1: Response to published research

This task requires you to select two research articles from academic journals in your field. Each paper should report on a research study.

1. Briefly summarise each of the two texts in terms of their topic(s) and where they 'fit' into the landscape of educational research (e.g., 'this is a paper in the area of gifted education that found...').
2. Briefly describe the research method used in each paper and each paper's main finding/s (e.g., 'this is a qualitative paper that used student focus groups and interpretive data analysis to show that...').
3. Explain why you chose these two papers and provide a personal response.

Assessment length: 1500 words

Assessment 2: Critical evaluation of two doctoral theses

This task requires you to critically analyse, and suggest and defend improvements to, the study designs of the methodology chapters from two recent doctoral theses in Education (completed in the last 10 years). Briefly outline the nature of the study and the research questions.

1. For each thesis, critique the research methodology and methods used as they relate to the topic – what are the strengths and weaknesses of using this investigative approach for this research problem, what other way/s might have been better, and how might you have approached the research problem? Do you have a clear understanding of how the data was analysed? Consider methodological issues such as positionality, reflexivity and ethics.
2. Comment briefly on the writing and layout of the chapter: to what extent did you find it easy or difficult (and/or interesting or not interesting) to read? How might the writer have improved it? You could also consider the writer's presentation of self here.

Assessment length: 4500
